

The invention disclosed involves a method of doing business whereby a user is provided with the capability of conducting transactions in a secure environment such as creating and dispensing information or conducting a purchase and sale transaction within the secure environment.